This 1975 Honda CL360 is finished in the Candy Orange of that year and the paintwork is original. It was still being enjoyed by its previous owner in Streetsboro Ohio and the owner has clearly taken great care of it. Unusually this one had a female owner at the time we found it and she has clearly looked after it.

The successor to the CL350, the Honda CL360 was built for three years and had a CB street-based twin. The main difference between the CB and the CL was of course, the scrambler pipes. Upgrades from the CL350 included a six speed transmission and an engine that was tuned for more torque over a broader rev band.

The Honda CB360 is a twin cylinder four-stroke motorcycle produced by Honda from 1974 to 1976. It succeeded the Honda CB350 and provided an alternative to the four cylinder CB350F and CB400F. The CB360 was a new design. The 356 cc engine was tuned for broad range torque, and drove the rear wheel through a six-speed gearbox.

Honda already had similarly styled motorcycles on the market with 350-cc and 400-cc engines. Looking back, the introduction of a 360-cc model is somewhat confusing -- the CB360 engine was tuned for a slightly broader torque range, and some reviewers found its ride slightly more refined than those of the other CB models.
