the use of incentive pay would be considered a symptom of a situation where the agent does not have enough intrinsic motivation. In their interpretation of intrinsic motivation, Benabou and Tirole (2006, 2011) argue that self-image is also important as a motivator; individuals need not only prove things to others but also to themselves.

~~Economics and Ethics: Incentives~~

Incentives provide a spur or zeal in the employees for better performance. It is a natural thing that nobody acts without a purpose behind. Therefore, a hope for a reward is a powerful incentive to motivate employees. Besides monetary incentive, there are some other stimuli which can drive a person to better.

Motivation crowding theory is the theory from psychology and microeconomics suggesting that providing extrinsic incentives for certain kinds of behavior—such as promising monetary rewards for accomplishing some task—can sometimes undermine intrinsic motivation for performing that behavior. The result of lowered motivation, in contrast with the predictions of neoclassical economics, can be an overall decrease in the total performance. The term "crowding out" was coined by Bruno

This review explores the role of incentives in providing goods and services that have significant social returns not captured in private returns, and where outcomes and performances are not easy to measure. We discuss how the presence of prosocial motivation among agents involved in the provision of these goods and services changes the design of incentives. The review also emphasises how ...

Incentives are the fundamental driver in economic analysis. Money is often the main incentive, but a complex range of other socio-economic and psychological factors also drive our decision-making. 'Motivation and incentives' outlines two groups of incentives and motivations: intrinsic and extrinsic.
