"My life was definitely smack dab in the middle of a monsoon season." Life for Kyle Ellings has been on a downward spiral. After walking in on his boyfriend with another man, Kyle finds his ability to play the drums vanishing into thin air, and with it his scholarships to Beasley University's prestigious music school. In a last ditch effort to rediscover his mojo, Kyle decides to try busking in the streets-a decision that brings him face to face with the handsome and flirtatious businessman who will change his life forever. What is it like to feel that passionate about something? For Matthew Crawford, routine is king. His strict discipline and willingness to sacrifice everything for his business-including love-earned him his millions at an early age. Now, Matthew can't help but feel like something is missing. When a projectile drum stick brings a sexy street drummer into his life, Matthew thinks he might've found that something-or someone. He was just a one night stand. I don't even really know him. Their night of passion was never supposed to be more than a one-time fling, but now Matthew can't get Kyle out of his head. How can Matthew, the playboy entrepreneur who's never been in a relationship in his life, convince Kyle to give him a chance? Will Kyle be able to get over his fears and find love and music again?
